Vol. 3—No. 200 GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, AUGUST 21, 1923 THREE CENTS

Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Learn to Swim Week Is Important Red Cross Work

THE Glendale chapter of the American Red Cross in staging a "Learn to Swim" week, beginning August 27, are doing a real service to the citizens of the community.

Appreciation of its offer to teach our boys and girls to swim should be shown by a large attendance.

Parents should take it upon themselves to urge their children to avail themselves of this opportunity offered by the Red Cross.

Every human being should know how to swim. It is so easy to learn and may be the means of the saving of life.

* * *

NEARLY every week the ocean takes its toll and a great many lives could have been saved if the individuals had been able to swim.

On account of the close proximity of the swimming beaches, nearly all of us go swimming many times a year, which makes it more necessary to know how to swim in case an emergency should come up.

* * *

THIS service of the Red Cross is in line with the wonderful work done by this organization during the war, which was made possible by the untiring devotion of the women of America.

We who were in the service during the late war would be lax in our duty if we failed to pay tribute to this organization when the opportunity presented itself. The hour was never too late nor the labor too hard to discourage this wonderful body of women. Hats off to them.

BRINGS CHARGES AGAINST NEW MANILA MAYOR

[By Associated Press]

MANILA, Aug. 21.—Differences between the American executive administration and the Philippine politicians found explosively sharp expression this afternoon when Manuel Quezon, who in the recent official upheaval resigned as president of the Philippine senate, announced that he had cabled the secretary of war in Washington that E. Flogio Rodriguez, lately appointed mayor of Manila by Governor General Leonard Wood, was an ex-convict from Bilibid prison and stood convicted of two crimes—conspiracy to procure the abduction of a woman by a band of bandits and complicity in the murder of an American soldier.

Legion Auxiliary Endorses the Idea of Co-operative Work

HOSPITAL AID TOLD

Mrs. C. T. Jones Resigns as Secretary Because of Brother's Illness

By vote of the members Monday the American Legion auxiliary endorsed the Community Chest idea. The auxiliary is planning to help the Red Cross prepare Christmas comfort bags for the boys at Hawaii, to be completed by September 1.

Mrs. Margaret Kaeding, president of the auxiliary, Mrs. L. T. Rowley, Mrs. James McBryde and Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward are planning to leave Glendale Saturday night and take a special train from San Francisco on Sunday morning for Eureka, to attend the state convention that begins there on Monday morning.

About $35 was cleared at the food sale held by the auxiliary on Saturday.

Important matters of business were disposed of at the regular meeting of the American Legion auxiliary of Glendale Post No. 127 held Monday at the Legion hall, preparatory to the state convention to be held at Eureka next week. On account of the serious illness of her brother, Mrs. C. T. Jones resigned as secretary and Mrs. Carl Schwitters was elected to fill that office.

Mrs. Kaeding gave a report of a resolution which had been drawn by the county council of the ninth and tenth districts, to be presented to the state convention at Eureka.

A report on the work of the hospital committee, of which Mrs. Nellie Snow Hyer is chairman on the work from January 1 until the present time was submitted, as follows:

Made 25 visits to hospitals.

Four cases have been investigated in Glendale of ex-service men.

Employment secured for one.

Second-hand clothing to the value of $25 has been given to the County Council.

Assisted wife of ex-service man in maternity case to the amount of $14.50.

Sold articles made by ex-service men to the amount of $82.50.

Have one dozen layettes on hand.

Sent, through assistance of children, two carloads of flowers to the boys at Sawtelle at Easter time.

STERLINGS PAY STERLING FINES

A strange coincidence occurred in the court room of Judge Lowe Monday morning when two traffic violators were brought before him. One was Louis E. Sterling, the other Lewis E. Sterling. Both are residents of Los Angeles but in districts far removed from each other, and they had not met until they faced each other in the court room. Each was fined $10, which they cheerfully paid. They had plenty of company, as between 45 and 50 cases were heard by the judge.

PHYSICIANS CALL AT C. OF C. OFFICE

Two physicians called at the Glendale Chamber of Commerce yesterday and announced they were delighted with the appearance and the summer climate of Glendale and as soon as they could arrange their affairs in the east they would come here to reside. One was Dr. Conkling from Palm Beach, Fla., the other Dr. Bellinger of Council Bluffs, Ia. Both will be giving up big practices in the cities named to gratify their desire to live here, and both were accompanied by their wives who appeared to share their admiration for Glendale.

NOTTAGE TO BE HELD

This morning J. C. Nottage, who has been confined in the city jail since his arrest, was to have a hearing today before Judge Lowe on the charge of a statutory offense. The judge expected to refer the case to the superior court.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA THANKS GLENDALE PRESS

To the Editor,
Glendale Daily Press.
Glendale, Calif.

Dear Sir: The University of California in Los Angeles is closing a very remarkable summer session of six weeks. The success of this summer session is due very greatly to the support of the newspapers. The State University is unable to be of full service to the people without your aid. May I express the thanks of the summer session in Los Angeles for the co-operation given the session by the Glendale Daily Press.

The session this year has numbered approximately 3500 students and I feel that they have all become friends of Southern California. This is a matter of satisfaction to all of us.

Very sincerely yours,
ALICE E. CORNISH,
Executive Secretary.

GLENDALE PRESS TO CROSS BATS WITH METHODIST TEAM

The Glendale Daily Press baseball team of the Community Service will cross bats at 7:30 tonight in the league series on Moyse field.

The meeting will be in the nature of a debut for the Press team which has many strong but rusty players in its membership.

TAX LEVY HEARING TONIGHT

Special Session of Council to Be Held at Seven o'Clock

Officials at the city hall this morning stated that the special session of the city council this evening would be devoted entirely to the ordinance introduced last Thursday fixing the tax rate for Glendale. As stated by council members at that time, the ordinance was tentative and introduced with the understanding that the figures would be changed tonight.

Those who have figured out the tax required to cover the general budget of the city, the sinking funds for interest and principal payments on bond issues, the budget of the city library and the reserve fund, declare it could be made 5c to 6c lower than the amount named in the ordinance, $1.14.

As this is a matter which affects every property owner, a large attendance on the meeting is expected. The general sentiment expressed by the men in the street is in favor of providing ample money for the legitimate needs and expenses of the city, but also in favor of keeping the rate as low as is consistent with this policy for the sake of the reputation of the city, which does not want to frighten away investors by a high tax rate.

GLENDALE ADS BRING RESULTS

The results from the Los Angeles advertising which the advertising and publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce are doing are proving very gratifying to the board of directors. Secretary Sanders reports that every mail averages five to ten inquiries. The bulk of them are from newcomesr in Los Angeles but they also come from points as far away as Detroit, Mich., and Spokane, Wash.

Booklets are sent to all inquirers and follow-up letters are mailed them.

POLICE POUR OUT BOOTLEG LIQUOR

Some of the by-standers had a sad moment Monday morning when Deputy Sergeant Simmons poured into the washbowl the liquor that had been held as evidence in the Lunan, Ella, Noveda, Nesbit and Collins cases.

SCOOTERS IS NEW SOURCE OF ANNOYANCE

Glendale youngsters have a hard road to travel in getting a good time. Yesterday F. C. Keenan, of 528 West Alexander, complained that children in his block are using their scooters on the sidewalk. When the desk sergeant was asked how the department treats such offenders against the city ordinances he said, "We talk to them, and if they persist, bring them before Judge Lowe."

Annual Event of Southern California Conference to Be Held for Ten Days in Los Angeles, Beginning on Thursday

More than 800 Glendalians, members of the Seventh-Day Adventists, are expected to be in attendance on the annual campmeeting of the Southern California conference during the ten-day session which opens Thursday night in Los Angeles. Large numbers from Eagle Rock, Burbank and other nearby cities also will participate in the mammoth religious revival.

SUPERVISOR TO SPEAK AT CRESCENTA

Improvement Association Calls Members to Important Meeting

LA CRESCENTA, Aug. 21.—A letter was issued during the past week by the La Crescenta Improvement association announcing their next meeting, the first Thursday of September, as one of the most important meetings of the year. There will be many important issues up for discussion. Supervisor Wright will be a guest at this meeting and will give a talk on the improvements of streets planned for this district for the coming year. The La Crescenta Improvement association is also asking a small donation of every property owner in the valley toward the upkeep of the fire department. The fire department has been unusually active this summer. There has been more small fires this year than many years combined. The entire valley, as well as the Verdugo Hills, has been threatened and only through the splendid organization of our men and deputy fire warden, C. Jennings Young, great calamity has been prevented. All checks and donations are to be made to C. A. Haskins, treasurer of the La Crescenta Improvement association, at the Montrose State bank. It is noped the response will be general, as it is the duty of every citizen in the La Crescenta valley to help support this cause—for the protection of his own home.

MEXICAN FINED FOR ASSAULT

Juan Garcia, charged with assault and battery against the foreman of Peter Ferry, had a hearing before Judge Lowe Monday and was fined $50. Between him and the foreman there had been some ill-feeling. The prisoner was a big man, the foreman a small one.

300 ATTEND SUBDIVIDERS UNITY PARTY

Haddock & Nibley Hosts to Gathering at Happiland

Getting together the principal forces of the city that are working towards making this a "Greater Glendale" and in inducing the outsider to visit this city, was the primary object of the dinner and dancing party given Monday night by the Haddock-Nibley Realty company, subdividers of Rossmoyne, who on Sunday formally open the Egyptian Temple office on Verdugo road.

The guests at the affair were members of the city council, city officials, newspaper representatives, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and tract salesmen, and included City Manager and Mrs. Wm. H. Reeves, Secretary and Mrs. E. F. Sanders of the Chamber of Commerce, Councilman and Mrs. Sam Davis, Councilman and Mrs. Horn, Councilman and Mrs. Asa Hall, City Attorney and Mrs. Ray Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Van Wie, Peter Diederich, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Twining, Captain and Mrs. Thomas D. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Rich and representatives of the Haddock-Nibley company.

The latter part of the evening was spent in dancing in the pavilion of Happiland Park, which is soon to be opened to the public as an amusement center. There were about 300 present.

According to Mr. Haddock it is the aim of the company to make this only the most desirable kind of a recreation park for women and children primarily. There is to be erected a scenic railroad, a merry-go-round and other similar attractions such as are found at a number of the beach cities.

RECKLESS DRIVER GOES TO JAIL

J. P. Fish, who was jailed for reckless driving and had a hearing before Judge Lowe, was unable to furnish bail in the sum of $300. required by the judge, and was taken to the county jail Monday afternoon.

VACATIONS START AT THE CITY HALL

Vacation time is on at the city hall. Deputy Sergeant Simmons starts on his vacation today and will return September 3. Sergeant Cole will take his place and Officer Hamilton will relieve Cole at the desk.

SECRETARY SANDERS SPEAKS AT SAN GABRIEL

Secretary E. F. Sanders of the Chamber of Commerce had to distribute himself quite widely Monday night when he attended the Haddock-Nibley banquet and then went to San Gabriel to address a meeting called for the reorganization of the chamber of commerce of that city and to make plans for an expansion campaign.

San Gabriel wanted to know how Glendale's chamber had been operating and the sixty or more citizens present seemed greatly interested in what Mr. Sanders had to tell them.

He is also booked as a speaker at a meeting called to organize a chamber of commerce in Beverly Hills.

WRITE A LETTER HOME ON CITY

John Case, member of the advertising committee of the Glendale chamber of commerce is likely to receive a new title in connection with his activities on the committee named, viz. "Old Home Town Editor."

Believing that many recent comers in Glendale would like to send a letter about Glendale to the local paper in the town from which they came, accompanied perhaps by newspaper cuts, the committee this morning discussed the advantage of spreading the fame of Glendale by inviting its citizens to send in such letters to Mr. Case, or to interview him in regard to letters to the end that they might be prepared for them. The old home town is always interested for a time at least, in the new nests of those who have flown away, and letters of this character would be certain of a cordial reception from the newspapers to which they might be sent. At least, that is what the committee believes, and it is ready to cooperate in spreading the news of what Glendale is like and where it is, among the old friends of its newly arrived citizens.

All members were present at the meeting held this morning with Chairman W. L. Twining, and as the work already accomplished and that planned was reviewed, enthusiasm mounted high. In speaking of the session, City Manager Reeves, who is a committee member, said:

"We did a lot of business. I am very much pleased with the way that committee is functioning, in trying to get Glendale on the map. It is laying ambitious plans to advertise this town in half a dozen directions, such as big signs welcoming the stranger. If we get the money we may follow the lead of Pasadena in advertising Glendale in publications like the Saturday Evening Post. Saturday we are to get a first page in the real estate section of the Los Angeles Herald."

28-HOUR MAIL SERVICE IS ON

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Twenty-eight hour mail service between San Francisco and New York was inaugurated here when Burr M. Wilson, air mail service pilot, hopped off from Crissy field at 5:59 o'clock this morning in a De Haviland plane carrying 64 pounds of first class mail. Plane and pilot will be changed at Reno, Nev., the first stop. There was one pouch of mail for Reno and one pouch for each of the other stops—Cheyenne, Wyo., Salt Lake City, Omaha, Chicago, Cleveland and New York.

Good weather favored the start. While the sky was slightly overcast, there was no fog and little wind. Reno reported "clear and calm."

A. C. Nelson, superintendent of the mail air service was at the take-off. Mayor Rolph of San Francisco had sent a letter to Mayor Hylan of New York. W. H. Pearson, mayor of Burlingame, Calif., had contributed a novel gift to the New York executive in the form of a box of "butterfly" orchids.

Pilot Blanchfield took off at 7:50, twenty-five minutes ahead of schedule. He said he expected to reach Elko in two hours and twenty minutes or less. Elko is not scheduled and as it will require a few minutes to change planes there, no time was lost at the Reno landing field in order to make up for the necessary delay at Elko.

Wilson began his return trip to San Francisco at 8:10 a. m., with Pilot Vance as a passenger. Vance will begin the eastern flight from San Francisco with trans-continental mail tomorrow morning.

REACHES NEVADA

RENO, Aug. 21.—Pilot Wilson, carrying the first consignment of cross-country mail from the coast, landed at the Reno air mail field at 7:46 this morning and four minutes later Pilot Blanchfield hopped off on the second lap of the course to Elko. Perfect flying conditions exist and schedule time is being made at this end of the country.

PLANE STARTS FROM THE EASTERN TERMINAL

[By Associated Press]

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Aug. 21.—With one mail plane winging its way from San Francisco to New York, another took off from Hazelhurst field, on Long Island, for the Pacific coast today, in the first five days tests inaugurated by the government to demonstrate the feasibility of permanent trans-continental air mail service. The start was made at 11:01 a. m., eastern standard time, unofficially clocked. C. Eugene Johnson was the pilot.

CONVICTS WALK OUT ON JAILOR AT COUNTY JAIL

(By United Press)

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 21.—There was a walkout at the county jail here early last evening.

Five "trusties," men who had been given unusual liberties around the prison, unlocked a kitchen door and disappeared.

The men are J. J. Flynn, "Whitie" Hellenger, William McGinnis, Louis Perry and Walter Bolen. They now face five-year terms in the state penitentiary under the terms of a law passed by the last legislature, which made jail-breaking a felony.

The sheriff and his men, while maintaining a close watch along auto highways and railroads for the escaped prisoners, are seeking an ex-prisoner whom they suspect of having fashioned a key and passed it to his friends within the jail.

GRIMM GETS GRIM RESULTS IN COURT

Things looked pretty grim in the court room of Judge Harry W. Chase of this city Monday morning, especially for the defendant in a case brought against Louie W. Grimm, who gave his address as 1527 Forty-eighth Place, Los Angeles. On complaint of A. F. Hopkins he was fined $50 for reckless driving on Michigan boulevard at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. According to defendant's testimony he was driving on the right hand side of the thoroughfare and tried to get into the center of the street, but shot instead to the extreme left-hand side and had a head-on collision with an auto in which Mr. Hopkins and family were riding. As a result three members of the Hopkins party had to be sent to a hospital to be treated for minor injuries. Grimm plead guilty.

WILL O' THE WISP GANG HOLDS UP M. K. T. TRAIN

Stages Old Fashion Drama at Bartlesville Oklahoma

BARTLESVILLE, Okla, Aug. 21 (United Press).—Al Spencer's notorious "Will-O-The-Wisp" gang was credited by authorities today with the daring holdup and robbery of Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger train 23 near Okesa at midnight.

The robbers, after slugging four members of the train crew, disappeared in the fastnesses of the Osage county hills with twenty packages of registered mail. The bandits slugged fireman B. D. Towers and engineer W. O. Miller over the head with revolver butts as the train rolled to a stop. A volley of bullets was then sent through the door of the mail car, forcing entrance.

C. D. Weiss and W. Burch, mail clerks, true to the traditions of their service, attempted to hold off the robbers, but were severely pummelled. After rifling the car the bandits fled westward through the hills amid a parting volley of shots from the train crew.

The train was nearing the end of a long grade and curve, moving slowly through a desolate country one mile east of Okesa, when the engineer saw a red lantern waving across the track a short distance ahead.

Brakes were applied with a jar and the train jolted to a dead stop within a few feet.

A dozen masked men, all heavily armed, began firing as they covered the engine crew, express messengers and mail clerks.

The express and mail car was cut out from the train and the engineer, with a revolver pressed against his back, obeyed the bandits orders and pulled the car about 300 yards from the passenger coaches.

The spot chosen for the holdup was ideal in every respect for the bandit operations. The country around has few settlers.

Several outlaw gangs make their hiding places in the rocky hills that extend for miles on either side of the railroad tracks. Autos are unable to go close to the scene of the holdup, back from Okesa, because of the rocky roads.

Able to work without fear of interruption, the bandits took their time and carefully went over the contents of the car. No official estimate of the loot was obtainable, but it was said to include at least a score of packages of registered mail.

A constant revolver firing was maintained while the holdup was in progress.

After obtaining their loot from the mail and express car, the bandits apparently were satisfied and did not further disturb the passengers. They warned the engineer to take his time about coupling on the main part of the train again and disappeared into the darkness.

Authorities believe the robbers have a well stocked cave hidden in the recesses of the hills, where they took refuge.

As soon as the train, bound from Kansas City to Oklahoma City, reached Okesa the alarm was spread and a quick pursuit was organized.

Sheriffs of surrounding counties were called upon for assistance.

All roads surrounding the hilly country where the bandits are believed hiding were guarded. Deputies were stationed at quarter of mile intervals. The authorities believed there would be little use in attempting to storm the robbers' stronghold immediately. The holdup men have undoubtedly fortified their position well and are prepared to resist an attack.

Plans were made to keep the outlaws bottled up in their den until they attempt to leave for provisions; to cash in on their loot or to separate in order to avoid detection. Railroad detectives who arrived on the scene early today were confident that it would be but a short time until the robbers become tired of their desolate surroundings and attempt to make a break for Bartlesville or Okesa.

I. S. BETZ HURT WHILE AT WORK

I. S. Betz, brick contractor associated with Myron Betz of this city, has been confined to bed owing to an accident that befell him last Wednesday while working on a job. He was busy on the first floor of a building on Los Feliz road, when a scaffold fell from the second floor and struck him. His leg was broken and a large gash cut in his forehead which necessitated five stitches to close the cut. It is thought that if the missile had struck him on the top of his head, it would have been fatal.

He is at present staying with his brother, Harry E. Betz of Kenwood and will be confined to bed for at least six more weeks.

WEDNESDAY
Vaudeville—From 1:30 p. m.

"The Ragged Edge" is the story of two young fools, in the words of the author, to be shown Wednesday at the T. D. and L. Ruth Enschede, the girl, is the daughter of a South Sea missionary, disillusioned with the world through the waywardness of the girl's mother. He is determined to cheat his daughter of all knowledge of love—even the very word. Clad in her mother's old-fashioned clothes, she flees her father's strange cruelty and arrives in Canton, China. There she encounters the other fool—Howard Spurlock. Spurlock is possessed of three things: a secret ambition to write, an ill-concealed horror of some episode in his past and an extremely obvious intention of drinking himself to death. He is going by the name of Taber.

MRS. MAX GREEN MARKS BIRTHDAY OF HER DAUGHTER

Mrs. Max Green of 528 North Maryland avenue entertained with a party at her home Saturday afternoon in celebration of the ninth birthday anniversary of her daughter, Barbara Green. Numerous prizes for games were awarded to the guests. During the latter part of the afternoon refreshments were served.

A color scheme of pink and purple was carried out in the bouquets of asters and other table decorations. Small favor baskets in pink, tied with purple tulle, were filled with candies. Place cards were of kewpies tied with pink and purple ribbons. Grape ice cream was served in little flower pots with pink asters blooming in the center. These colors were also carried out in the decorations of the large birthday cake.

The guests included Janet Redmen, Helen Sloan, Marjorie Hopner, Edith Eichelberger, Caroline Everington, Daphne Darling, Patricia Darling, Margaret Moore of Los Angeles, Margaret Sherman of Long Beach, Patsy and Max Green, Jr. Mrs. B. D. Jackson, grandmother of Barbara Green, and Miss Katherine Crow assisted Mrs. Green in entertaining.

WOLVERINES ARE CALLED FOR PICNIC RALLY

Dr. M. R. Parmelee, phone Boyle 3205, president of the Michigan Association of Southern California, calls on all who have ever lived in that state to meet under the auspices of the Michigan association for the great picnic reunion, all day, Saturday, September 15, in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles. Come as early as you can and spend the day with friends. We will have county registers and headquarters so you can find the old neighbors even with 10,000 present. There will be a brief program opening about 2 o'clock, but the main purpose will be to have a good time. We want to see all the former residents so as to make this the greatest picnic in our history. Bring your basket well filled and share with friends. Coffee will be served free to all who buy the souvenir badges. Tables can be reserved for college, county or town reunions.

Each one who learns of this picnic is asked to pass the word along. Further information may be had of the president or of C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies, Continental National bank, Main at Ninth, Los Angeles, phone 10261, where our Michigan registers are kept on file and all may see them.

PONY EXPRESS TO BE RE-ENACTED, AUGUST 31

OMAHA, Aug. 21.—How the old Pony Express operated during the Civil War and how it is to be re-enacted this month, is told in the Union Pacific magazine, which is being distributed today. Buffalo Bill's nephew, William F. Cody Goodman will lead off on the first lap from St. Joseph, Mo., on August 31. The run will end at San Francisco on California's Admission Day, September 9. The fastest pony express record of 7 days and 17 hours, which was made with President Lincoln's inaugural address in 1861, may be broken, although the celebration this year is designed to call attention to the pony express rather than to break records. The route of the old pony express closely parallels the route of the San Francisco-Overland Limited of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific, except that the train goes through Omaha and the pony express started at St. Joseph.

Of the 61 pony express riders recorded in history, only six survive. Charles Cliff of St. Joseph, who may ride for a few blocks in St. Joseph before turning over his mount to Buffalo Bill's nephew; W. H. Streeper of Farmington, Utah, Tom Ranahan, of Los Angeles; Charles Becker, of Westfall, Oregon; John Seebeck and William Prindham, both of Alameda, Calif.

The pony express lasted from April 3, 1860 to October 24, 1861, when the Pacific Telegraph was completed. Many of the pony expressmen later became drivers for Ben Holladay's stage line that was discontinued upon the driving of the golden spike at Promontory, Utah, connecting the Union and Central Pacifics.

The pony express required the services of 80 riders, 420 horses, 190 stations and 400 station men. The longest continuous trip without a formal rest period was 322 miles made by Buffalo Bill at the age of 16 years.

TRUE FAITH, TOPIC OF REV. KRINGEL

Rev. Henry O. Kringel delivered a sermon on "True Faith" Sunday morning at the service of the Concordia Lutheran congregation. His theme was based on the passages taken from Matthew 8, 1-13.

The speaker said in part: "The great central theme of our gospel is faith, faith illustrated both in the leper and in the centurion. The climax is reached when Jesus exclaims: 'Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.'

"The unbelievers have no true notion of faith. Ask them, and what will they say? Some of them will tell you that faith is but a mask which Christians wear upon their face. This class of unbelievers looks upon Christians as hypocrites. A second class of unbelievers look upon faith as a sort of mental disease, an illusion formed in the mind. This class judges Christians as if they were men with an unbalanced mind.

Such are the opinions of infidels. They have not the least idea of what faith constitutes. They speak of faith as a blind man would speak of colors. And is this to be wondered at? Does not the Word of God say, 'the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him.'

"Our gospel points out the foundation on which true faith is built, and also tells of the fruits of such faith. Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen!

"We will not consider true faith's foundation. On what did the leper in our gospel rest his faith? We are told, 'When He was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed Him. And, behold, there came a leper and worshipped Him, saying, Lord, if Thou wilt, Thou canst make me clean.' Here we must observe that the leper is not praying for a spiritual gift, but for a temporal blessing. He is asking for the removal of his leprosy. Jesus had just delivered His great sermon on the mount, and the leper had probably stood from afar and heard the sermon, because the law did not permit him to approach others on account of his contagious disease. But when Jesus came down from the mount, the poor man was bold enough to walk right up to the Lord, to fall down before Him, burying his face in the dust, and to utter the request: 'Lord, if Thou wilt, Thou canst make me clean.' Mark well how he submits to the Lord's will, teaching us with his example that, if ever we ask for a temporal gift, we should leave it to the Lord to deal with us according to His good pleasure.

"On what did the leper rest his faith? On Christ, His good and gracious will and His almighty word. He desired to hear the word of Christ telling him he should be clean. And not in vain did he entrust himself to the Lord, for we are informed, 'And Jesus put forth His hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.'

"Is your faith resting on Christ as the solid foundation? In our days thousands of Christians claim to be true believers, and there is no sound and solid basis to their faith. The only foundation upon which Christians must rest their faith is Christ's Word. Whosoever simply relies upon that which God has spoken in His divine Word, in the Bible, whosoever believes that his sins are forgiven, and that he shall be received into heaven for no other reason than because God declared in His Word that all men, even the greatest of sinners, are reconciled with God for the sake of the painful suffering and bitter death of His beloved Son Jesus Christ, and that through His name whosoever believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins—he has based his faith on the true and everlasting foundation on which alone it can securely rest. Nothing can prevail against faith resting on such foundation, as on Christ, the Son of the living God on High."

'SALOMY JANE' TO CLOSE AT GATEWAY

Scoring an emphatic hit savoring of a triumph, Paramount's picturization of Bret Harte's famous story, "Salomy Jane," is cordially indorsed by large audiences at the Gateway theater. It closes tonight. Jacqueline Logan, George Fawcett and Maurice Flynn, the featured players, contributed much by their artistry to make the presentation the success it proved to be.

It seems like carrying coals to Newcastle to tell the story of "Salomy Jane's Kiss," upon which the picture is based. Salomy Jane is a delightful mountain character as portrayed by Jacqueline Logan. When the stage, driven by Yuba Bill, a part excellently personated by Mr. Fawcett, is robbed and the stranger (Maurice Flynn) is arrested for the crime, the action becomes tense and spirited.

SANITARIUM IS OFFERING SAFE INVESTMENT

Putting 6 Percent First Mortgage Real Estate Gold Notes on Market

The Glendale sanitarium and hospital is offering the unsold portion of $360,000 in 6 per cent first mortgage real estate gold notes, a gilt-edge investment. This stock has been secured by first mortgage on the land, buildings, income and equipment, and it represents one of the safest stock buys on the market. It is legally approved by the Tile Guarantee & Trust company, also by Kemper Campbell, attorney, of Los Angeles. The notes are due serially July 1, 1928 to 1946, priced at $100 and accrued interest to net six per cent. Denominations of the notes are $100, $500 and $1000. All are exempt from the personal property tax.

The new million dollar sanitarium itself is indication of the splendid opportunity offered the public to secure these notes and hold a share in this growing institution.

The Glendale sanitarium has been a wonderful success from the start. It began in the old hotel building at 511 East Broadway, which as a hotel was not a prospering enterprise. Since 1904 it has grown with Glendale. In 1905 the incorporation was effected, and since, efficient service and management have pushed it ahead to the present well-established status as a million dollar institution. It is well known all over the United States today for the capable attention of attendants and general excellence of equipment and service.

The site upon which the new building is located is not only valuable, but beautiful and particularly adapted to the use of the sanitarium. It possesses all that could be desired in health-giving qualities. Comprising over 20 acres of wooded land, it commands a magnificent panorama for several hundred square miles of mountains, valleys, cities, and away to the south, the blue Pacific ocean. The extensive brick structure, completely equipped with all modern facilities for caring effectively for the ill, with such a wonderful location, has a brighter outlook than ever. The possibilities for its growth are inestimable here where the climate and the peaceful location are in league to make it one of the most popular institutions in the country.

In addition to this land on which the new sanitarium buildings are constructed, the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital corporation owns one-third of a large block in the very center of the city of Glendale. This is appraised at $150,000 and is included in the mortgage security. The new hospital is now located on it.

There is every guarantee behind the stock offered at this time, and it should prove inviting to all those who are in the market for a safe and sure investment.

EFFECT OF NEW COMMUNITY LAW

Commenting on the futility of efforts to hold up the new community property act passed by the last legislature and signed by the governor, Judge Harry W. Chase points out the important changes it makes in the status of married women who now have the rights their husbands possess in the disposition of community property.

Many opposed the changes declaring they would tend to unsettle business, and endeavored to utilize the referendum to prevent the act from going into effect. The referendum law provides that upon presentation to the secretary of state of a certified petition signed by qualified electors equal to five per cent of all votes cast for candidates for governor at the last preceding election, the act must be submitted to the electors for approval or rejection at the next general election. But in this case the petition lacked about 900 names and the law became effective ninety days after it had been passed and signed by the governor.

Said Judge Chase:

"Three special acts were passed with reference to community property, one of which changes the inheritance tax laws of this state to conform to the two new sections of the civil code which just went into effect.

"Section 1402 of the civil code was changed showing how community property interests would be terminated and administered, and the rights of the husband in event of the death of the wife.

"The greatest change, however, was in Section 1401 of the civil code. This primarily affects the interest of the wife in the disposition of community property in this state. Under the old law, which had not been changed since 1874, upon the death of the wife the entire community property belonged to the surviving husband, and upon the death of the husband one-half of the community property went to the surviving wife and the other half the husband could by will dispose of as he saw fit. In the event that he did not make a will, one half of the community property went to his wife and the other half to his children.

"The new law under Section 1401 makes the wife the equal of the husband in the right to dispose of half of the community property. The law now allows the wife to make a will, giving half the community propprty to whomsoever she desires. In the death of either husband or wife, one-half of the community property belongs to the surviving spouse and the other half is subject to the testamentary disposition of the deceased."

MARINELLO PUTS IN PERMANENT WAVE MACHINE

Graduate Cosmetician Is Secured to Operate New Department

Adding to their expert corps of capable beauty specialists, the Marinello Beauty shop, 123 West Broadway, has secured the services of Miss Effie McCormick, formerly an instructor in the National School of Cosmeticians. Recognizing Marinello as the acme of skilled and careful beauty service, the women of Glendale have already shown their approval of the modern permanent waving machine. Since it was installed about August 1, nearly 20 heads of hair have been transformed from their straight or unruly tendencies to a "crowning glory" of waves and ringlets.

Under the efficient management of Mrs. Clara B. Moss, the local shop is giving the satisfactory service for which Marinello shops are nationally known and patronized.

Miss McCormick gives a most pleasing wave on the new machine, water-waving or marcelling the hair afterward. This trains the wave to a natural semblance and prolongs its stay in the hair.

'CALL OF THE WILD' OPENS THURSDAY AT THE GATEWAY

Carnivorous mammal (canis familiaris) of the family canidae.

That's the classification a dog like Buck, the canine marvel of Hal Roach's production, "The Call of the Wild," is placed under in the dictionary. He is the hero of the film to be seen at the Gateway Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

But Lou Treesh, the trainer who assisted Fred Jackman, who directed the film, gives no such cold-blooded definition of him. He says:

"Buck is a thoroughbred Saint Bernard. And just because they're so rare is no reason that he's a freak. He's a very good dog—has his likes and dislikes, like any other animal, but if he likes you, he'll be your friend and he'll fight for you. But he's not like one of these mongrels that forget an unkind word in a minute and come back, licking your boots. If you insult or hurt Buck today, he'll remember it six months and six years from now. He's got character, that dog."

Buck is of the reddish, smooth-coated variety of Saint Bernards, with the characteristic soft brown eyes and long bushy tail, and while Mr. Treesh is speaking, Buck looks at him adoringly and waves his bushy tail, as if to confirm and approve his statements.

DOG RETRIEVES TROUT

KLAMATH FALLS, Oregon, Aug. 20 (United Press).—Fosoo, Boston bull pup belonging to Mrs. Fannie Kilbourne, one of the proprietors of the Eagle Ridge resort, Klamath Lake, has been given the title of official trout retriever.

The dog goes fishing with his mistress, and as soon as a trout strikes, he dives from the boat like a flash. As Mrs. Kilbourne pulls the fish to the surface Fosoo seizes it by a gill and swims back to the boat, proudly bearing his finny victim.

It is impossible to destroy courage by plucking it up.

TYPICAL HOME AMID THE BIG TREES DEEP IN EDENWILD, THE NEW SANTA MONICA MOUNTAIN SUBDIVISION NEAR CALABASAS

One Reads the Return of the Tailored Suit in the Stars

It is being whispered from the house tops that the classic tailleur is about to return to the ranks of the favored in costumes. The straight lines, the stitched lapels and the sharply defined pockets are due. Like the end of the world, it may not be for many moons to come but astrologers point clearly to the fact that the ultimate arrival is certain.

In the meantime the way is being blazed by semi-tailored suits in which the coat and skirt are so subtley wedded by bow or embroidery that they look more like a dress than anything else. It makes a moment of some embarrassment when a lady starts to take off the upper part of one of these costumes, but fears are usually allayed at the sight of some such blouse as was seen at a recent gathering. It was made of white crepe Cinderella pleated in inch wide pleats except for the short banded sleeves and the plain belt which was apparently a continuation of the band at the side front.

Summer suits are of course silk. This one is of black crepe Faille Moire, cut to show the beauty of the material—a new weave from the looms at South Manchester, Conn. A rather straight skirt has the fullness all on one side draped in a manner that makes it look as if it fell from the great soft bow which finishes the coat. The tight sleeved coat is high-necked and fastens at the side front of the neck with a button. The standing collar has a turnover of white crepe Cinderella, which also makes the cuffs and the lining to the bow.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

Nerve Control

"Mary Bell is just that nervous, doctor," explained her mother.

They were in the new doctor's surgery. The doctor looked at Mary Bell intently.

"You don't look nervous, Mary Bell," he said, kindly. "And you are too young to have nerves, anyway. Supposing you tell me all about these queer feelings your mother says you have."

Mary Bell sat silent, wriggling her feet, and twisting her gloves.

But her mother instantly obliged.

"Mary Bell can't bear thunder storms. They make her sick," she said. "She gets that from her grandmother, though doctor. When I was a little girl my mother always put us children right in the middle of a big feather bed, shut the windows and lit the lamp so we couldn't see the lightning. Being nervous in storms runs in our family.

"But Mary Bell gets worse and worse. It isn't only thunderstorms. She blushes all the time and stammers and can't think of a word to say before company. She was a delicate baby and she has never been strong. She gets hysterical at the sight of a mouse and she can't bear crowds or loud noises."

The doctor sighed.

No wonder Mary Bell was nervous, if her mother talked as tirelessly at home as she did abroad.

Mary Bell, mean time, almost slipped off her chair in an effort to be less conspicuous. She was the picture of awkward unhappiness and the doctor's heart went out to her pityingly.

"I think there must be something wrong with her heart. Her grandfather died of heart failure," resumed Mary Bell's mother.

The doctor carefully gave the girl a chest examination. Then he looked up and said, "Her heart is as sound as can be. What kind of exercise does she take?"

"She's so delicate, doctor," replied the mother, "that I don't allow her to take any exercise to speak of. I'm so afraid of her heart."

"Her heart is perfectly normal. The nerve centres and nerve energy may be a bit out of control, but that is of no importance," said the doctor.

"What Mary Bell needs is an interest in life and in people," continued the physician. "She needs some work to occupy her attention. Some study to stimulate her mind. Some work that will make her tired and sleepy."

"She is so delicate," began the mother, unconvinced.

"That is one of the most popular superstitutions," said the doctor, dryly. "The trouble is that you have petted and pampered Mary Bell so long that she has never had an opportunity to be normal.

"Mothers frequently are unfair to their children, in an overwhelming desire to express their love for them."

"I don't think I'm delicate," said Mary Bell. "Sometimes I feel as if I could do things like other girls if mother would let me."

Her mother turned to her in amazement.

"I never heard you say so much all at once in my life, least of all to a stranger," she said.

Mary Bell had flushed rose red, but she looked at the doctor hopefully. He was scribbling on paper.

What he wrote on the paper was: "Bed at 9 o'clock, breakfast at 7. No reading in bed. No very hot or very cold baths. Frequent tepid baths, with friction and setting up exercises for ten minutes afterward. Milk, two quarts a day, in some form. Pastries and chocolates, none. Some work, some play, sympathy, and more companionship."

"This," he said, "is my only prescription for loss of nerve control."

GLENDALE SHOWS LONGFELLOW FILM

It will doubtless interest those who have seen the William Fox version of Longfellow's "The Village Blacksmith," now on view at the Glendale theater, no less than those benighted but historically curious persons who haven't, to learn that the smithy of the poem actually existed. This blacksmith shop stood on Brattle street, Cambridge, and was owned by Dexter Pratt. Longfellow himself must have more than once looked in at the open door and watched the flying sparks.

There was something like a collision of opinion between the poet and the city government of Cambridge when it was thought necessary for the widening of Brattle street to remove the "spreading chestnut tree." Longfellow earnestly expostulated, but the tree fell nevertheless. However, by one of those happy thoughts that sometimes break the monotony of municipal annals, it was proposed to the city fathers that the children of the public schools should be invited to build out of the wood by their small subscriptions a great armchair for the poet's study. This was done, and the poet insisted that his house should always be open to the children of Cambridge who wished to show the chair to any of their friends.

Henceforth his name was to these children a household word, and the most charming feature of the festival held on the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of Cambridge (December 28, 1880) was the reception given by one thousand school children to the gray and courteous old poet, who made then and there, almost for the only time in his life, and contrary to all previous expectations, a brief speech in reply. To commemorate the children's gift he wrote a poem, "From My Arm Chair."

The average man is better at confessing the mistakes of other people than he is at acknowledging his own.

NEW SANTA MONICA MOUNTAIN TRACT EXTENDS WELCOME

EDENWILD SUBDIVISION CALLS ALL GLENDALIANS ON SUNDAY, AUGUST 26

Southern California's Picturesque Scenic Tract in Santa Monica Mountains to Entertain Local Folks With Big Picnic Gathering

Sunday, August 26, will be Glendale day at Edenwild, Southern California's picturesque scenic subdivision, being opened in the Santa Monica mountains, four miles beyond Calabasas. J. W. Usilton, 201 North Brand, local agent, extends an invitation to the people of Glendale to bring their lunches and enjoy the beautiful Edenwild garden. Once spending a day there, or an hour even, no one will be satisfied until the giant sycamores and liveoaks are rustling leaves down upon his own little rustic home. He will want to have his share of Eden—for the tract is well named "Edenwild." It is a veritable wilderness garden, as much of a surprise as if someone suddenly announced that he had found the garden of Eden here within so short a distance of one of the world's fastest growing cities. And why not?

This is to be California's exclusive mountain cabin resort, by actual running time just one and one half hours from Fifth and Broadway, Los Angeles. It will not be opened for the excitement-mad mob that frequents the swarming amusement places of the "popular resort," where a medley of noise and light keeps up day and night. There is only one beautiful vision for Edenwild, a charmingly restful "woodsy" mountain spot. Deer, rabbits, quail, and other game still run the hills as in the days before man appeared to shoot them off as fast as powder and shot could be sent out a gun barrel. Giant trees interweave foliaged branches overhead, allowing trickles and golden splotches of sunlight to fall through here and there. A well-defined breeze rustles through to allay the heat of summer days and plays it soft staccato song through the leaves at night.

Other people will be near at hand, but surrounded by the natural beauty, still unspoiled by careless campers. It will be hard to believe that the city's rush and roar is so near at hand. Yet Los Angeles is just 36 miles away. People who run in the race of the growing city, who spend their days in offices where the work goes on with the mechanical force and routine of a treadmill will appreciate the splendid opportunity to build a little cabin home out in Edenwild, where they can go week-ends or drive out over night for a refreshing rest. The paved highway makes this possible and convenient. Their wives are perhaps under the strain of entertaining and being entertained, and their children do not get the most out of life when they cannot give vent to their natural bouyancy within the city's confines, will all look forward to Edenwild visits. There will be a tennis court and playground where children can romp and shout as exuberantly as they desire without fear of disturbing anyone's peace and quietude.

Old oaken bucket wells will be let down at convenient places, and these with Cold creek will furnish an abundant supply of water for domestic use. Trails and roads will make it possible to reach practically every site by auto, and while these roads will cover the entire tract, each cabin site will be private unto itself, surrounded by its own little wilderness garden.

This is the last desirable mountain tract within one hundred miles not privately owned or selling at several times the price. Lots range from $110 to $420, with only a moderate first payment to be made, and no assessments or interest added. The sites average 3200 square feet. The Continental Securities and Investment company is opening this new subdivision which is a welcome addition to Southern California's vacation centers.

The best route from Glendale to Edenwild is to go to Burbank, turn to the left on Magnolia street, and go to Lankershim, then on to the state highway at Universal City and north to a point about four miles above Calabasas where there is a large sign marked "Edenwild." From there all turns are marked.

One day spent in Edenwild and an allure seeps into the soul which is perhaps after all but the old longing of city-dwelling people to get away from the crowds. They can forget the rush, the troubles and the forced gayety, out among the growing things that need but the hand of nature to bring them to such marvellous perfection.

For those who appreciate solitude, shady nooks, breezes rustling through trees, seclusion—a mountain place where nature is continually trying to outdo herself every passing season—there is Edenwild. One can sleep, or just lie down on the shiny oak and golden-brown sycamore leaves, look up at the cloud patched sky overhead, and with his mind away on a pleasant dream trip, forget that the car needs overhauling, that the house wants a coat of paint, that 16 ounces make a pound, 100 cents a dollar, and that a dollar doesn't make much of anything.

No one will interrupt his thoughts with a "Mr. Jones, telephone, long distance, on No. 10 please," or "Jones, Mr. Smith is here to close that deal."

And in Edenwild there is so much more than cannot be pictured in type. Whatever it is, it will call you back. You will sit at your desk, or look out of the kitchen window on the warm days, visioning again the pleasure of lying out there under the trees and planning for the little mountain cabin.

Below the sweep of rolling foothills,
Where an Edenlike mountain garden lies,
The rustling leaves make lacework,
Tinted with the blue of mountain skies.

And if I'm sore of heart and weary,
Tossed around on life's rough sea,
I leave for virgin wildwoods
Where all nature calls to me.

From the glare of the brazen city's
Sham and glitter of "tinsel" gold,
I rush to the peace of the woodland,
Back into nature's fold.

And with all that God created,
Just as he placed it there,
Proof of his love and nearness,
Lies about me everywhere.

I find my assurance awaiting
Out in the summer wood,
And passing on down the journey,
I see that the world is good.

I find trust and life and beauty,
God, and through God, I find myself,
And see there is something to living,
Other than piling up towers of wealth.

I find truth and peace and justice,
With faith and love and hope,
All alone in a silent wild spot,
Out on a mountain's slope.

I find rest, hope, peace and comfort,
Faith in God and fellow man;
So, I pack up and go back to nature,
When and where'er I can.

COFFEE GROUNDS AND CAMP FIRES

(There's a Reason)

By RANGER BILL
(U. S. Forest Service)

"It's plumb surprising how many careless people there is in this world," said Ranger Bill as he pulled the saddle off his steaming horse and turned him loose in the corral. "And ignorant, too, 'bout little things, when they're in the woods. You can believe it or not, but I'm giving it to you straight that just common, ordinary coffee grounds is the cause of more fires in this National Forest than most anything else.

"You see it's this way," continued the ranger, as he lit his old briar and puffed away thoughtfully. "Most people that live in the cities think we folks up here in the mountains are—well, kind of 'know-nothings.' I admit that when we go down to town we do kind of shy at the trolley cars, and some of us don't know whether the mezzanine floor is upstairs or down, but somehow we manage to get around without getting lost, and I've noticed that our money is still at par.

"But you take Mr. City Man and put him up here in the "tall uncut' and the shoe's on the other foot. To him anything that's not paved is 'a bear of a road'; his folks are 'fraid of snakes and wild animals where there ain't none, and when it comes to north, south, east and west, why, they just naturally all look alike to him. He's mighty glad then to have a ranger tell him where and how to go to camp and fish and hunt. And we're more than willing to do it, too, because that's a part of our job.

"Then comes the morning after. A good night's sleep out in the open and a hearty breakfast makes the world look pretty bright and smiling to the city folks. Everyone's packing up and anxious to be off. Mr. City Man bustles around to see that he hasn't left anything. His eye lights on a sign on a tree: 'Put Out Your Camp Fire.' He stops and scratches his head. The creek's a long way off, and the shovel, if he has one, stowed away in the car. He looks at the fire. The coffee pot! Eureka! He rushes over and pours the dregs and the coffee grounds over the smouldering coals, kicks in a little dirt, and is gone.

"After that? Well, it's mostly a race between the morning breeze and Buck and me to see who'll get to the fire first. Sometimes we win; today we lost, and there ain't no camp ground there any more. But I'm still living in hopes that some day we'll be able to educate people that coffee grounds won't put out a fire. It takes water and lots of it, and a heap of real earth, not rotten wood and needles. If you ever go into the mountains here's a good motto to carry under your hat: 'Be sure your camp fire is dead, then bury it!'"

Little four-year-old Florence was playing with a can and a penny, putting the latter into the former, then shaking the can and dropping the penny on the table. While her attention was attracted to something else for a moment her mother dropped another penny into the can, and when the little girl shook it, much to her astonishment, two pennies rolled out.

"Oh, look, mamma," she exclaimed, "I broke my cent."

The inducements offered during the stove show will positively be withdrawn when the store closes Saturday night. A special demonstration will be held Thursday evening and it will be well worth attending.

GLENDALE DAY at EDENWILD

Sunday, August 26

Bring your lunches and enjoy a day of inspiration amid the crags and liveoaks in scenic Edenwild, than which there is no more picturesque spot in Southern California.

To reach EDENWILD from Glendale: Go to Burbank, turn to left on Magnolia street; from there to Lankershim; thence to State Highway at Universal City; then north till you reach a point about four miles above Calabasas; when you will see a large sign marked "EDENWILD" and hand pointing the way. The turns are well marked to "Scenic" EDENWILD.

When the mercury rises to a point where it is a trial to remain cheerful and have an optimistic view of life, haven't you longed to get away from the heat, hustle and clamor of the noisy city? Haven't you been cherishing a desire to pass your vacation and the week-ends of the summer months away from the crowded beaches and mountain resorts? Haven't you an ambition to possess a mountain home of your own where you, your family and warmest friends may do as you please?—a mountain home so close-in you may pass the week-ends or come and go daily if you like and yet be next to nature at her best?—Haven't you?

SURE YOU HAVE! And you have pictured that summer home in just such a place as EDENWILD—one of the most beautiful and most picturesque spots in Southern California—and only thirty-six miles from the heart of the sweltering city—just a nice spin over the Ventura Highway.

EDENWILD is the closest and choicest summer home spot near Los Angeles. It is the last desirable mountain tract within a hundred miles that is not privately owned or selling at several times the price we ask for EDENWILD. But EDENWILD will soon be gone and there will be no more, as the last tract of the Santa Monica mountain country has been filed upon.

EDENWILD SUMMER HOME SITES
$110 to $420

Pay one-fourth down and take possession.
Balance in twelve easy monthly payments.
No interest—no assessments or dues to pay.
The sites average 3200 square feet.

EDENWILD, as the name implies, is a natural wild garden of Eden—an entrancing spot of scenic beauty nestling in a beautiful wide valley of the Santa Monica Mountains and is a veritable region of virgin mountain playground and to the discriminating lovers of the great outdoors it is being offered as a place upon which to erect a mountain home or a cabin.

EDENWILD is covered with immense liveoaks, sycamores and other large and small trees and is a spot where deer, rabbits, quail and other small game roam the hills as in the days before the intrusion of man. This place has an elevation of 1200 feet, which means that the days are perfect and the nights are delightfully cool.

EDENWILD is being developed and placed upon the market as an exclusive mountain cabin resort, not too far from the city, where people who appreciate nature in all her glory can erect a mountain home for week-ends and for summer vacations.

EDENWILD is privately owned and while we welcome and invite all interested people to visit the place and to pass the day among the trees or to select their cabin site—we reserve the right to refuse admission or to sell to any person or persons whom we deem undesirable for this spot.

EDENWILD will ultimately become a place of privately owned mountain cabins and homes and not a resort of dance halls and public amusement places with the accompanying crowds and rubbish. Due to the enormous demand in past years, close-in mountain cabin sites are practically exhausted and we believe that after you visit EDENWILD you will agree that EDENWILD is the only remaining ideal close-in tract now being offered to the public.

EDENWILD will be traversed with a system of roads and trails that will make it possible to reach practically every site in an auto and while the roads and trails will cover the entire tract—yet—each cabin site will be private unto itself. Old oaken bucket wells will be constructed at convenient places and the wells, together with Cold Creek, will furnish an abundant supply of water for domestic use. A tennis court and playground for the children will also be constructed.

EDENWILD will essentially be a place of cabin homes and for the people who do not care to erect their own place we have plans for the EDENWILD CABIN and we are prepared to erect a nine by twelve to a twenty-four by twenty-four cabin—either the cabin complete or without porches, steps, cupboards, etc.

EDENWILD is for the man or woman or the child who enjoys a spin over a paved road to the tract—and who appreciates the solitude of a book, or a shady nook and the seclusion of a mountain home in a place where nature is continually trying to outdo herself—these are yours at EDENWILD—You may drive, sleep or pursue that enjoyment which pleases you most and once more we desire to impress upon you—that you own your own site and cabin—and that you will have no dues or assessments of any kind.

EDENWILD beckons you—invites you and your family and friends to pass a day in the most beautiful spot in Southern California.

SAVING FOOLS FROM FOLLY

Officers raided a narcotic establishment near San Francisco a few weeks ago. The place was provided with bunks for 100 victims. It did a lively business also in transient trade, as twenty automobiles drove up with patrons while the officers still were present. The proprietor of the place was fined $2000 and sentenced to prison for five years. No term of imprisonment could have been adequate, human life not embracing such a span of years. The man is worse than a murderer, because not only accessory to that crime, but to every form of crime known to the depraved.

Sympathy is incited by the spectacle of a drug fiend suffering for his or her dosage. The agony of such an individual appears to be most acute. Soon there is absolute wreck of body and mind, while early in the downward journey, moral sense has become obliterated, shame had died, and honor been cast aside. There have been instances of cure, but in extreme cases it is questionable that the effort at rescue is worth while. The sooner the drug fiend passes from the scene, the better for all concerned.

Drugs destroy the will. Therefore it is said that the addict is helpless. But before he began indulging he had a will. He knew, unless an utter fool, whither the step he was taking was bound to lead, and he took the step. There are many who think to indulge on the ground of being ready to try anything once. Such rash adventurers dot the road that ends in ruin. But so long as people lack sense to protect themselves, there must exist the social duty of protecting them. Therefore the necessity for enforcing the law against the sale of pernicious drugs, with utmost rigor.

GERMAN IN SCHOOLS

To find any reason why German should not be taught in schools would be extremely difficult very evidently. At least it is so difficult that it has not yet been found. The German language is useful in commerce, and to the student, well nigh indispensable. To interdict it would be to prevent intimate contact with the findings of men noted in every field of learning. The world could not afford such loss.

Prejudices growing out of the war necessarily were bitter. There could be no wisdom in nurturing them in peace. When the use of German in the schools was forbidden, it was for definite reasons. There were communities American geographically, but in which there were public schools in which teachers and pupils alike spoke German. No English word was uttered there. Schools sustained in the United States are not sustained for any set of aliens, however desirable the presence of these aliens may be. It is part of their duty to train to become American citizens, and part of the duty of the schools to give them the opportunity.

When the war was on and feeling ran high, the discovery was made that at some such schools as mentioned, not only was the language German, but the instruction was in German ideals and philosophy. The effort was being made to establish here and there a community Germany, opposed to all the principles for which the United States was fighting. This was an anomolous situation not to be endured. It led to the banishment of German from public schools. There was no time for nice adjustments. To German, as a study, as an incident of the educational process, there could be no objection. To the German language as supplanting English, and German thought as supplanting American, there was objection then, and still is. But this seems to have nothing to do with the matter of including German in the curriculum, accessible to such as may desire to master it.

AN EXCELLENT LAW

The state law regulating the sale of firearms, presents in relation to enforcement, rather unusual difficulties. It will be effective so far as honest dealers and reputable citizens are concerned. As a check on the activities of the underworld, its chief promise lies in the fact that the penalty for breaking it may be severe. The most dangerous men who now go armed, or who make a practice of selling deadly weapons, will be slyer in their operations. The criminals who commit acts of violence would not find the business profitable did they lack the cooperation of other criminals who maintain an outward seeming of respectability. The burglar who has the price is able to procure tools as fine as are made for the artisan plying a skilled and useful trade. While he counts firearms as among the essentials of his calling, he will be able to obtain them.

The readiness to supply crooks with weapons hardly could exist except for the obligation thieves are under to sell their booty. They must sell to persons, who being crooks themselves, dare not betray them. These persons are interested in promotion of burglary and similar offenses. Hence, law or no law, the denizen of the underworld, the last man to be trusted with firearms, will be the last to be deprived of them. Nevertheless the purpose of the law is good and the results likely to be beneficial. At least the time when a wild-eyed individual may rush into a pawnshop and for a trifle buy the instrument of murder or suicide, and no questions asked, may be regarded as over. Every time a violator of the new law is caught, to give him the penalty limit, would be promotive of public safety.

REPELLING A HOSTILE ARMY

The ranks of organized criminals constitute a large and threatening enemy. Its assaults are constant, its manoeuvers shrewdly directed, and its numbers are recruited faster than the law is able to reduce the total. In other words, the army is increasing. In various cities there has been organization for the definite purpose of repelling it. In no place has this been more marked than in Los Angeles, where the battle even now wages fiercely.

When citizens thus array themselves on the side of law and order, they are confronted by one astounding fact. This is that other citizens, who should be shoulder to shoulder with them, are little better than spies in the camp. Holding themselves above the flagrant enemy of society, under the guise of political expediency the spies consort with the army of crime. They meet the leaders, confer with them; virtually take orders from them. If they possess official authority, they employ it to defeat the objects of the citizenry banded for protection.

Suppose some subordinate official is honest, and desires to remain honest, what happens to him? Scandal and contumely are his portion. There is created for his undoing a smudge of suspicion. Plots are formulated to discredit him. He is dismissed from his position in a manner that is designed to show that he was not fit for it; to show also that the ones discharging and seeking to disgrace him, were attesting by such course the possession of rare and beautiful virtue.

The public is not fooled by this. It realizes that the enemy army exists, and that its existence is encouraged and prolonged by the very men who, enlisted on the other side, have betrayed, and continue to betray their trusts.

By the wish of a Texas man expressed as he was about to die, his lifeless form was clad in fur burial robes worth some $35,000. There is a maudlin sentiment back of the desire to respect such silly and selfish orders. There is scant probability that decedent needs the fur.

ABANDONING THE HELPLESS

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

California has invited the whirlwind; and what she has invited will come to her.

Why the men whom the electors of California chose to serve them in the last legislature should have had such a deep sympathy with males who desert their families without support is one of the things that will have to be determined by psychologists. The fact remains that they repealed the law making it a felony to abandon families without support and turned this little habit into a mere misdemeanor, which means that the taxpayers of the state will from now one have an appalling problem on hand.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

Just why a man should be permitted to beget children and shove their support on the community no sane person can comprehend any more than one with intelligence passing that of a fishing worm can see why legislators elected to protect the interests of their constituents should so betray the confidence imposed in them as to express through the law sympathy with the meanest and most contemtible shirkers that exist.

Even with the law making abandonment without provision for support a felony, which was placed on the statute books in 1907, the state and the counties have been hard put to take care of the hordes of little children deserted by run-away fathers. Men have for years come here from all over the country, deposited their families and beat it, leaving the taxpayers the task caring for their families.

Massachusetts alone of all the states in the union has a rigid law forcing men to provide for their families AND as a corollary a law providing the funds to hunt down run-away fathers, bring them back and compel them to take care of their children.

And it is notable that these laws have practically broken up in the state of Massachusetts the abandonment of minor children, because it is established in the thick heads of would-be-family deserters that running away will do them no good.

From now on in California it will not even be necessary for them to run away. The kind and considerate legislature has made everything smooth and pleasant for shirks, and hard and puzzling for honest citizens who not only must provide for their own families, but must in addition kick in with the taxes necessary to feed the children of men who are too lazy or too selfish to support their offspring.

No more may judges sentence lazy and shiftless fathers to the rock pile and turn over their earnings for the support of their children, nothing like that. Judges may hereafter admonish and possibly fine, and, in aggravated cases, perhaps send a man to jail for a short term where he will fatten at the expense of the people. But work him—NEVER. That would be too great a punishment for a professional shirk.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Not very long ago a friend returned from a visit to England. I expected to be—and was—bored by his enthusiasms about ivied walls and storied keeps. But most of all he talked of English kindness.

"They were the finest lot," he said. His wife was enthusiastic. "The dearest people," she said. "They were so helpful and friendly. No trouble was too great."

That passed until another friend returned from France with the same report. The French, he said, were unquestionably the finest people on the footstool. And another who had been rambling through the Balkans told of the vast pains to which the Serbian peasants would go, first to discover his wishes and then to meet them.

"We must be a pretty deckle-edged lot," I said to myself. "No one ever talks of American courtesy. We spend a good part of our time telling each other how we can be improved."

But I discovered that isn't true. Foreigners who come over fairly corsucate with praise. The Swedish servant girl next door tells how the fine looking man with a silk hat walked with her until she found the house she was looking for. The English banker tells of the kindness of the garage mechanic. The Frenchman says that:

"Ze man he laugh ha-ha at ze Eengleesh of me. But he put me in hees own car and drive me to ze right place and zen talk to ze man."

So I've discovered that we are all pretty nice people. We all like to do favors. It is the exceptional man who is unpleasant when appealed to, and nine times out of ten his gruffness is provoked by an item of the appeal. If one calls:

"Hey, you!" he may bark in return. But an "I beg your pardon" rarely fails to win a kind response. Maybe that's the secret of it all. Strangers in a strange land are habitually courteous and so they receive courtesy. Politeness begets politeness.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Epigrams.
Things said aptly in times of stress.
Gleaming like diamonds in the sunlight.
Having the truth in a pea shell.

* * *

JAMES W. FOLEY

Christ was a master of epigram.

Truth coming from His lips in short, sharp sentences.

"Get thee behind me Satan!"

"Do unto others as you would they should do unto you."

"Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's."

"Go and sin no more."

"Consider the lilies."

"Let him without sin among you cast the first stone."

"Whited sepulchres."

"Fishers of men."

* * *

So we might go through the saying of that marvelous Teacher and find whole philosophies of living and doing in a sentence.

Pearls of truth strung with words.
Simple, truthful, forever inspiring.

* * *

And flashes of truth have come often from the lips of the great.
Come in a few words.
But covering a whole field of wisdom and philosophy.

* * *

Marcus Aurelius, when he said "No man can fix on me what is ugly."

All of the modern systems and philosophies have their basis on this.

The independence of the individual spirit.

The acceptance or the rejection of evil, falsehood, greed, anger, bitterness.

No man can fix a frown upon you.
No man but yourself.
No man can put hatred into you.
No man but yourself.
No man can lower the mettle of you.
No man but yourself.

* * *

Then there is Terence:

"Nothing that concerns a human being can be a matter of indifference to me."

Here is all of human brotherhood and friendliness done in a sentence.

* * *

And through the ages.
Columbus:
"Sail on!"
No hesitation, no fear, no halting.
Forward.
The philosophy of courage in two words.

* * *

Nelson:
"England expects every man to do his duty."
Here is all of service and patriotism.
Simple, plain direct.

* * *

Lincoln was another master of epigram:

"With malice for none and with charity for all."

The soul of greatness set forth in a few monosyllables.

And on the death of that martyred President, Garfield on hearing the news of the assassination:

"God reigns and the government at Washington still lives."

* * *

Pinckney: "Millions for defense but not a cent for tribute."

Coolidge: "There is no right to strike against the public safety."

* * *

Careers have been made by a truth expressed aptly and tersely.

With courage behind the expression.

Songs of the Poets

"What Do We Plant?"—By Henry Abbey

What do we plant when we plant a tree?
We plant the ship, which will cross the sea.
We plant the mast to carry the sails;
We plant the planks to withstand the gales—
The keel, the keelson, the beam, the knee;
We plant the ship when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?
We plant the houses for you and me.
We plant the rafters, the shingles, the floors,
We plant the studding, the lath, the doors,
The beams and siding, all parts that be;
We plant the house when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?
A thousand things that we daily see;
We plant the spire that out-towers the crag,
We plant the staff for our country's flag,
We plant the shade, from the hot sun free;
We plant all these when we plant the tree.

MONEY AND THE PRESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE real question is not whether the Money Power owns the press. The problem that worries us is why does the Money Power not go out and buy up the press.

When a millionaire gets tangled up in a murder case he doesn't seem to be able to keep his name out of the papers.

When a trust starts out to buy up everything and everybody in a certain industry the newspapers publish the fact.

These gentlemen would purchase and drown a dog that bayed under their window, and would bribe an obstreperous organ grinder so that he would not play before their house, and would see that an indiscreet parson was removed; therefore, why do they not go out and purchase the newspapers and magazines?

What hinders the banking trust and the other interlocking trusts from quietly getting their hands on all avenues of publication?

There is a screw loose somewhere.

And the trouble is that the newspaper and the magazine of wide circulation is and will remain automatically democratic. These publications depend upon the good will of the multitude.

And in the end the multitude is about as shrewd as the publicity agent for a corporation.

In other words, you can fool some of the people all of the time and you can fool all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time.

It is this law that makes and keeps any great newspaper comparatively honest. No other policy will pay in the long run.

It is quite the custom to abuse the press, to declare that it is bought and to refer to it as capitalistic. As a matter of fact, these charges have a specious sound, but they are inherently absurd.

The financier can easily acquire control of most kinds of business. Bankers get hold of railroads, woolen factories, copper mines and the like.

It is a common charge that the great industries of the country are dominated by a few wealth units.

But the claim that groups of wealthy men dominate the press, a claim vigorously maintained by Mr. Upton Sinclair, can hardly be substantiated.

It is easy enough to corner beef or wheat, but it is not so easy to corner ideas or the expression of them.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WOMEN AND MORTALITY

[New Orleans Times-Picayune]

The statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company finds that the mortality rate among women is increasing. Accepting his estimates as a rule for general application, it is logical to assume that if the rate of increase continues to advance at the pace maintained in the last few years—man eventually will lead woman in longevity. In the past the longer life of women has been regarded as a statistical fixture.

And it is only within very recent years that woman has been losing ground in this company's mortality table—since the sex has been participating actively in business and industry.

Significantly, perhaps, the Metropolitan's industrial insurance records show that in 1911 the white male morality was 13 per cent higher than that of white females, while since 1920 this death rate among women has been actually higher than that of men—a complete reversal. The woman of the home, however, still appears to be holding more of her traditional supremacy over man with respect to low mortality. Yet she, too, has been hit, in ways which suggest a faster pace of living and a tendency away from normal habits.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

A girl recently leaped from an automobile going at high speed. She was severely injured, and is now in the hospital. Employed at a telephone office, she was anxious to get to her work. A man who looked like a decent chap offered her a ride. With some inward hesitation she accepted. He began to go at high speed, in a direction other than desired. Then he became insulting, making known his evil intent. She risked her life to get away.

HENRY JAMES

The man supposed to be guilty is in jail. If justice be meted out he will be in jail ten years hence; also ten years after that, should he live so long.

It is a pity, but it is true, that a girl is not safe in riding with a stranger, and it is about time for a few examples to be made of the sordid brutes who are responsible for a condition so shameful.

A decent man, desirous of being courteous, is restrained by the fact that his proffer of a ride is likely to be deemed an insult. He may be indignant, but he has no right to blame the girl for adopting "safety first" as her slogan. A scoundrel possibly has the aspect of gentility, and often he drives a good machine.

Denver has had a somewhat destructive visitation of flood waters, but they receded early enough to prevent loss that for a time had seemed inevitable.

There are two tricky streams through Denver, one Cherry Creek and the other the Platte river. Neither is much to look at ordinarily, and both display more dust than water. But when they rise they rise mightily.

The floods mild as they were, did far more injury than is accomplished by a temblor, yet at each California temblor, the Denver press has the cheerful habit of throwing a fit.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

CHASING BUTTERFLIES

It is a lovely day in spring. The sky is blue and high and scraps of white cloud skip across it, playing tag with the sunbeams. Soft little breezes play in and out among the blossoming trees, scattering soft showers of perfumed petals to fall on the sweet smelling brown earth freshly upturned to the life-bearing sun.

Out in the fields little children bend over rows of green growing things. With finger and thumb they pinch out the crowding plants. The sun is warm on their bent backs. Their fingers ache with the cramping ache of fixed and weary muscles. Their backs stiffen and complain in sharp creaking accents of pain.

Huddled between the close rows, their bodies crouch on bent knees until childish endurance can hold out no more, and they stagger upright and draw long breaths of the sweet air, and stretch out their aching hands to the comforting sunshine.

A dancing butterfly dares one little fellow to chase him, and he runs after him, forgetting. Hither, thither, he runs, now close to the taunting beauty, now gazing after him as he soars toward the blue, a shimmer of colorful bouyant glee.

Childhood was given us that we might have our day of chasing butterflies. They were made dazzlingly lovely for just that end, lovely things to send smiles of joy rippling over the hearts and the faces of dancing children.

"Fred, you lazy young rascal, what d'y' mean? Think this is your birthday? Y' aren't here to play. Get busy and don't let me see you off the job again, or something'll happen to you." Fred bends again over the tender growing green things.

Labor is bitter to childhood. It was not in the plan from the beginning. It is not in accordance with the rules. It is not the sporting thing to do—this grinding the face of childhood on the wheels of industry. Childhood is distinctly the time for play.

"And shall not children learn to work? Shall not they learn to carry the burden and the heat of the day as their fathers have done?"

Yes, of course! No man escapes. But children learn to work through play, and the freer and sweeter and cleaner the play is, the finer the work will be when its day comes.

But no child should be forced to labor for his living. Every child should be allowed to play, and play until he plays himself into the spirit of work.

"The children like to work!" Do they? Perhaps they do. We'll test it this way. Let the butterflies flit about them and leave the children free to decide whether they care to chase them or to ignore them and go on with their work.

If they turn their backs to the butterflies and turn to their tasks with shining eyes and eager, greedy hands such as butterfly chasers show, they may go on with their chosen work and welcome. But if they chase the butterflies? Then they must be set free!

EDWARD STARK IS SPEAKER AT BIBLE CONVENTION

Addressing assembled delegates from all parts of America and from twelve foreign countries at the opening of the International Bible Students association convention at Trinity auditorium, Grand avenue, Saturday, Edward Stark, in a keynote speech, declared that the time has come for mankind to admit there is no way out of the present social and economic chaos except by going back to the principles of the Divine Creator.

He cited the unrest in Europe, especially the disturbances in the Ruhr, growing out of the war, and declared that all Europe is still suffering from shell shock. He announced that as the culminating event of the convention, Judge J. F. Rutherford, famous jurist-evangelist would bring a message of mighty import, to be delivered at a great mass meeting at the Coliseum, Exposition park, next Sunday. "He will bring to the attention of the people the scriptural basis for an Armageddon," declared Mr. Stark, "but also the good news that we are now living in the time when there will be millions of people who will never die."

Answering the address of welcome, E. D. Sexton, who is chairman of the general committee of the convention, cited the remarkable growth of the International Bible Students' association, especially in Los Angeles. He declared it was parallel to that of the city itself.

"There is probably no religious organization in the country that has shown such a large and healthy growth," he declared. "We are better understood today. Prejudice and ill-will have been removed by this better understanding."

He said that twenty-seven years ago the Bible students in Los Angeles numbered sixteen individuals. Today there are more than one thousand active here, and five times that number in Southern California.

There are more than 5000 delegates attending the present convention, and among the speakers scheduled for the daily sessions up to the last day, Sunday, August 26 are noted men from far distant parts of the world. Judge Rutherford is to arrive in the city Wednesday, and will take part in the discussions at Trinity auditorium previous to his great address at the Coliseum. He has recently returned from Europe, and brings first hand information as to conditions there. While in London he addressed one of the largest throngs ever assembled for a religious discussion, in Royal Albert Hall, said to be the biggest assembling place in the world.

Willard, a five-year-old youngster, was in the habit of complaining at his dinner. One day his father said to him, "Willard, you should not find fault with what is set before you. When I was your age I was thankful to get enough dry bread to eat."

Willard finished his dinner in silence, but as he climbed down from his chair, he said, "Papa, ain't you glad you come to board with us?"

THE NIGHT

'Tis all we know, this panoply and splendor;
The Chieftain sleeps;
We know no honors more that we may render;
Now twilight creeps
Above the mound; God wilt Thou not be tender
With her who weeps?

Hushed are the bugles; and the dirge and token
Song and the prayer;
The grim words of the commitment spoken;
Earth hath her share.
God, rest this heart of hers so nearly broken
That lingers there.

The tumult dies; and in this silent hour
Death hath his will;
The scythe hath swung to reap the grain and flower,
On vale and hill;
Lord, be with her in this, the bitter hour,
When all is still.

The captain and the ruler in Thy keeping,
As Thou hast willed;
For her, the lover and the husband sleeping,
The fond voice stilled;
And the long nights to come for her, with weeping
And darkness filled.

The panoply of earth, the pomp and splendor,
All, all are gone;
No honors greater, higher, can we render;
Until the dawn
When Time may bring his peace, wilt Thou be tender
As night comes on?

"RACE OF FAITH" SERMON SUBJECT AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Sunday, August 19, the natives of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the six New England states had their turn in the contest at Central Christian church. Seventeen were present from the nine states. Mrs. Eska Smith, who was born in Illinois but lived 40 years in Boston, read a most interesting original poem detailing the merits, delights, advantages and products of Massachusetts, beginning with the Mayflower settlers in 1620 and winding up with "And now we have the president." The contest closes next Sunday with the native sons and daughters presenting the claims of California.

Rev. A. F. Ritchey, pastor of the fast growing Christian church of Sacramento, was introduced by his former parishioner, A. H. Lathrop, now an elder in the Glendale church, as the man who would fill Rev. Clifford Cole's pulpit that morning and evening. After a graceful introductory tribute to Glendale's church and pastor, the speaker announced his subject as "The Race of Faith," with the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, the roll of the heroes of faith, as a background, and the first two verses of the succeeding chapter as his text.

With quaint imagery he pictured this great company of heroes, from Enoch to David, leaning over the battlements of heaven in company with all the workers and martyrs since Christ's time, watching the race of the saints of today. And in this race, unlike the great Olympic and similar contests, not only one can win the victor's crown of laurel but all who are faithful to the end.

"The world is not worthy of these great heroes of the cross, such as Ray Eldred and wife, who gave their precious lives for the ignorant black men of Africa, Dr. Shelton, who laid his poor tired body in lonely far-off Tribet, the 'roof of the world,' and hosts of others of our day. They warred against unbelief as did those of the olden time and it was their faith that conquered.

"You have two in your own congregation here who start soon for the dark Congo land to bear the message of salvation. And what are you and I doing? We can't go, perhaps, like they, but we can, with our money, freely given, send those who will go. Then let us run the race of faith bravely and well, sure that the audience of heroes of bygone ages is watching us eagerly, ready to welcome us home."

UTAH GRID MEN READY SEPT. 15

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah., Aug. 21.—Gridiron players of the University of Utah, champions of the Rocky Mountain football conference, have been summoned to report for scrimmage on September 15. The call was sent to 40 players, including the remaining members of last year's title squad and those of the freshman team, who showed good form.

Coach Fitzpatrick has a wealth of material from which to build his 1923 machine, the prospects for a strong team being brighter this year than any other time in the Crimson's history. The Utah mentor expressed confidence in the local school's chances to again win the conference championship. Utah's first games this year will be against Whitman college on October 6.

Rheumatic Neuritis

Says His Prescription Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pain and Twinges —Is Guaranteed.

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

Every druggist in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of ALLENRHU, the sure conquerer of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

ALLENRHU has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of ALLENRHU, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless ALLENRHU decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance.
